WRITERS MEET IN ANNUAL SESSION

Times-Dispatch Correspondents Discuss Details of Profession.

WELCOMED BY THE MAYOR

Judge Williams Responds—President Lofton's Annual Address.

After a day devoted to discussing the pleasures and vicissitudes attendant upon the career of a newspaper writer, The Times-Dispatch Correspondents' Association adjourned yesterday afternoon to meet again to-day at 4 o'clock. This hour was fixed because this morning the association will hear an address by the President, and in the early afternoon the members desire to attend the Tard day exercises.

A fairly good attendance was present when the president, Dr. Lucien Lofton, of Emporia, called the body to order in the assembly hall of Murphy's Hotel. Of course, the number of members is expected to-day, many of the correspondents having arrived last night.

Other officers present at the opening were the corresponding secretary, Miss Gertrude Sebrall, of Yorkins, and the treasurer, Miss L. O. Andrews, of Farmville.

An invocation was pronounced by Rev. Robert W. Forsyth, Mayor David C. Richardson was then introduced to deliver the address of welcome.

Mayor Extends Welcome. The Mayor said that as Virginians the correspondents did not need a welcome to their capital city; that this was their own city, and that they should feel as much at home as in their own places of abode.

In his response, Judge Martin Williams, of Petersburg, said that his official residence in Richmond had taught him that this was not only the city of Richmond, but the city of Virginia. No city, within his knowledge, he said, extends a more hearty welcome to the visitors within its gates.

The work of newspaper correspondence, continuing under the able leadership of Dr. Lofton, was then discussed. The Mayor said that a closer relationship between the people of city and country. He declared that the rural and urban residents had come to have a better appreciation of each other.

President's Address. Then followed the annual address of Dr. Lofton as president of the association. He thanked the members for their earnest co-operation with him in the work of the body, assuring that the association has prospered far beyond expectations.

The subject to which Dr. Lofton alluded particularly was "The Power of the Legitimate Press." "National opinion," he declared, "has been made to tremble under its powerful influence. Mighty sanguinary exhibitions have come to pass as a result of its energy. Calamities have been wrought by its existence. Opposing factions have been brought to a common platform. Evils have been obliterated. Famines have been averted. The terrors of financial ruin have stalked abroad, and yet were throttled by the very greatness it created by public opinion, properly and wisely moulded. The commercial life has prospered under its optimistic advice.

Highways have been created by its untiring and unselfish display of activity. The millions of mental and physical wrecks to-day owe allegiance to this bulwark of power for good, which the legitimate press of the world generates and bestows in behalf of a civilized people of a closely linked earth."

Continuing, Dr. Lofton declared that the wholesome newspaper has been a God-send to the ambitious man and woman. "Men, women and boys," he said, "are no longer handicapped by an inheritance of poverty, have advanced in the world through the assistance of the press, who otherwise might have, in lieu of this strong and effective educator, made brilliant criminals, to disgrace a civilization. None too careful about its impoverished wards possessing native ability and with ambition born of a proud spirit who yearn to elevate their own miserable condition."

Dr. Lofton paid a high tribute to the honor of the profession. He said that he had never known personally, by reputation, an editor who was not always willing, anxious and energetic in giving his readers absolute facts, insofar as facts could be obtained.

"Newspaper men," he continued, "no longer sacrifice an honest opinion, or any opinion, for an exchange of money. A newspaper is charitable, but may be made vindictive when confronted with a villainous insult. To question the integrity of an honest editor is not only unwarranted, but is indiscreet, and often the toll is heavy."

"You may reason with the press, but the day of coercion is passed. The press has facts, and are willing to pay for the truth. They decline a falsehood at any price, thanks to the decency of the spirit that is now keenly alive in practically every editorial sanctum in the South."

Dr. Lofton concluded with some personal experiences in dealing with news editors. Constitution Adopted. Judge Martin Williams, chairman of the committee on constitution and by-laws, read the committee's report, presenting a complete set of laws. The constitution provides for two classes of members, active and honorary. The report was adopted. At this point, Percy L. Pruden, of Suffolk, was called to the chair during the temporary absence of the president.

The morning session ended with the reading of the minutes of the last session. The association reassembled at 3 o'clock, and heard three papers read. The first was "The Trials of a Country Correspondent," by Mrs. J. H. Hines, of Crewe. Mrs. Hines described her experiences since the time when, a girl, she made her first venture into public print. It was a snide story, embellished with the title, "Truth Is Might and Will Prevail," but did not receive universal acceptance as a fact. She related her second attempt, when her manuscript was returned with the brief marginal comment, "No good."

Then her correspondence with the Richmond Times, and later with The Times-Dispatch, was recounted. Mrs. Hines said that booklets labeled "Points for Correspondents" formed a considerable portion of her library. Her paper was punctuated with laughter, and it was well received.

Miss Gertrude Sebrall, the corresponding secretary of the body, presented a paper on "Women in Politics." In this production the history of woman's suffrage movements was traced, and the first portion of the argument seemed to favor the proposition. However, when the other side of the question was reached, it became evident that Miss Sebrall is not a suffragist. She took the position that the suffrage is a labor and a duty which constitutes a part of the defense of the home, and which therefore belongs to the man. One argument against the enfranchisement of women is the large number of ignorant and uneducated foreign women who would be given the ballot. Politics, she admitted, is an unattractive world, but she doubted if the influence of her sex would be increased by the privilege of the franchise. Miss Sebrall's argument for present conditions was given earnest attention.

Educational Factors. The concluding paper of the day was read by Dr. H. C. Beckett, of Scottsburg, Va. His paper, "The Press as an Educational Factor," this phase of the work of the newspaper received much praise and also its meed of criticism. Dr. Beckett said that the paper keeps the public informed on the progress of the world's affairs, and mold opinion in their editorial columns. The mighty force of the press, he said, cannot be gainsaid, and that this force is generally exerted for the right is undeniable.

Several papers will be read at this afternoon's session. President Taft's address comes at 10 o'clock this morning, in the hall of the House of Delegates, at the State Capitol. He will be introduced by Dr. Lofton. Two meetings will be held tomorrow, in the morning and afternoon, and the banquet will be at Murphy's Hotel tomorrow night, beginning at 9 o'clock. The business session in the afternoon will be the annual election of officers.

BOARD DENIES CHANGE IN PLAN

Henrico Supervisors Insist That Westhampton Car Service Be Maintained.

After hearing the request of the Virginia Railway and Power Company, that it be allowed to discontinue the operation of certain cars on the Westhampton line to the terminus at the park and be exempted from the fine provided for non-compliance, according to the terms of the contract, the Henrico County Board of Supervisors yesterday passed a resolution asking that the court not grant the request and insisting that the terms of the original contract be adhered to.

The company was represented by counsel, who explained that it was the desire of the management to run cars in future only to the Three-Chop Road, about three-quarters of a mile from the park, and that the company would agree to put on more cars and give better service. Many citizens who were present, and who live beyond the road, complained bitterly, saying that it would inconvenience a great number of people working in this city, and that, when going to their work or returning home, they would have to walk a long distance regardless of the weather. Both sides fought bitterly, but the citizens finally won.

The text of the board's resolution is as follows: "Resolved, That it is the sense of the board that conditions have not so materially changed as to warrant any interference on the part of the board. Therefore, the request of the Virginia Railway and Power Company, that it be allowed to discontinue the operation of certain cars on the Westhampton line to the terminus at the park and be exempted from the fine provided for non-compliance, according to the terms of the contract, is refused so far as it relates to requesting the court to amend that section of the franchise relating to its western terminus, and requests the court to insist upon the franchise being adhered to."

The accident seemed unavoidable, and no blame was placed either on the chauffeur or the street car crew.

NEED MALE VOICES

Few Basses or Tenors Attend Second Rehearsal of Wednesday Club Chorus.

With an increased attendance, especially of alto and soprano, the second rehearsal of the Wednesday Club Chorus was held last night in the auditorium of the Young Men's Christian Association. There were very few basses and tenors, and Director Morgan will inaugurate a crusade to increase the number of male voices. "It is very important that prospective members start practice early," he said last night. "The hardest work is in the early training, and unless we get a firm foundation we will have much more trouble later on."

The rehearsal was very successful, however, and served to encourage those who have undertaken the task of selecting talent. The third rehearsal will be held next Tuesday night.

Motor Car in Mix-Up. While trying to turn around at the corner of Eleventh and Main Streets shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon the automobile of T. W. Duke was struck by Main Street car No. 846. The collision broke the step from the motor car, injured no one and did no other damage. BAR ENDORSES JUDGE E. M. ROSS

Favor His Elevation to Supreme Bench of United States.

The Richmond Bar Association at a special meeting held yesterday at 1 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce, adopted resolutions endorsing Judge Erskine Mayo Ross, now of California, for appointment to the supreme bench of the United States, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Associate Justice Peckham. John H. Rutherford, president of the association, occupied the chair, and the resolutions were presented by Preston Cooke, who briefly reviewed Judge Ross's career. Mr. Cooke stated that he was born and raised in Virginia, and that he had spent much of his early life in Richmond, where he read law after graduating from the Virginia Military Institute. He was with the cadet corps at the battle of New Market, in the company with Mr. Cooke, President William H. White, of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railway, and other Richmonders.

After Judge Ross moved to California, where he has since made his home. Ten years later he was appointed a justice of the State Supreme Court of that State, and in 1898 was elected a judge of the United States District Court for the Southern District of California, being later elevated to the bench of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

Text of Resolutions. The resolutions as adopted follow: "Resolved, That we, the members of the association, endorse Judge Erskine Mayo Ross, now of California, for appointment to the supreme bench of the United States, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Associate Justice Peckham. We believe that Judge Ross is one of the ablest and most distinguished jurists of our time, and that his elevation to the supreme bench of the United States will be a great honor to our country."

"Judge Ross left Richmond as a young attorney some years after the war to make his home on the Pacific coast. Judge Ross is now in California, where he has since made his home. Ten years later he was appointed a justice of the State Supreme Court of that State, and in 1898 was elected a judge of the United States District Court for the Southern District of California, being later elevated to the bench of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

"Possibly no man on the Pacific coast enjoys a higher reputation as a gentleman, lawyer and jurist than Judge Ross. He illustrates in all his relations those high ideals of learning, courage, culture and integrity which direct and command the admiration of all men."

"His many friends on the Western coast, as well as those of the Middle and South Atlantic States, would rejoice to see him elevated to the supreme bench of this country. If it should so please the appointing powers."

"Therefore, resolved, That the bar of the city of Richmond heartily subscribes to the foregoing sentiment."

BALCONY TESTED

Gallery of High School Auditorium Shows ample capacity.

Tests were made yesterday afternoon of the balcony of the auditorium of the new High School building, which demonstrated that the reinforced concrete truss on which the floor rests had ample strength. During the construction of the building some question was raised as to the designs for the balcony, and in order to satisfy all parties the School Board ordered a test of the completed work, which was made in the presence of the Building Inspector, who expressed himself as entirely satisfied with the strength shown. Work is still progressing on the heating and ventilating system, not yet finished, and it is believed that the building will be entirely complete by the end of this month.

LAYMEN PLEDGE MISSIONARY FUND

Grace Church at Supper Raises More Than Its Entire Apportionment.

More than the total apportionment to $4 raised by Grace Episcopal Church for the Laymen's Missionary Movement was pledged at a supper last night. These subscriptions followed an inspiring meeting of laymen, addressed by prominent lay workers of the city. The arguments advanced in favor of the interdenominational missionary movement for the evangelization of the world in this generation, were from the business standpoint. Not only was the religious viewpoint put forward, but convincing facts were presented from the standpoints of patriotism, industry and humanity.

Judge L. L. Lewis presided. Prayer was offered by W. S. Duke. The first speaker was E. Dabney Greenhaw, whose subject was "Unity." He dwelt upon the ease with which the work can be done under the proposed organization.

CASE OF PELLAGRA AT CITY HOSPITAL

Jesse D. Glass, of Goochland County, Presents Strange Type of Dread Malady.

Suffering with an acute case of pellagra, Jesse D. Glass, of Goochland county, is attracting much attention from the medical fraternity in Richmond, and the majority of the physicians here have been to see him at the City Hospital, where he went last August to seek treatment for an attack of paralysis. Pellagra developed afterwards, but he informed the attending physician, Dr. John Garnett Nelson, that he had had the same symptoms before. There are now marked eruptions on his forehead, the nape of his neck and on the back of his head. Mental symptoms have not yet appeared, and Glass still preserves all his faculties.

Dr. Thomas W. Murrell said last night that the case is typical. Examination into Glass's history disclosed the fact that he is not particularly fond of corn, but that much of his diet had been of store meal, of which his attack is attributed, though it is still a question whether a corn diet is the cause of the disease.

Glass is being treated systematically by the object of the physicians being to build up his system as much as possible. He is holding his own, it is said, but there is no known cure for pellagra, and he will eventually die of the strange malady. His case is peculiar, in that the premonitory symptoms generally appear in January, or early winter, and the eruption in May, after which it usually clears for a while. But the eruption on Glass is very marked now.

The history of the case has been filed out for the Board of Health, the members of which are developing strong interest in the case. Glass is the fifth person in Richmond to have the disease, but the first case at the City Hospital.

The disease is believed not to be contagious, and it will not be necessary to quarantine Glass. He is single. He has been living in Richmond about a year. He will be cared for until the disease has had its run and claimed him as another victim.

FATALLY HURT IN FALL OF 12 FEET

James McMillan Hurried to Hospital Here With Severely Fractured Skull.

James McMillan, fifty years old, was fatally injured at Midlothian, Va., yesterday afternoon, and was brought last night to the Memorial Hospital. There are no chances for his recovery. McMillan, who is a carpenter, was working on a scaffold when he fell a distance of twelve feet. He reached this city at 9:30 o'clock last night, and an operation was immediately performed.

The skull is fractured at the base of the brain, and there is a severe dent an inch deep in the top of his head. McMillan was employed by E. C. Woodward, a contractor, of 6 South Rowland Street, and had been engaged for several weeks. He is a bachelor, and has no immediate relatives living here.

Robert McMillan, a brother, of 7035 Monticello Street, Pittsburgh, Pa., was notified of the accident last night. Another brother lives in Oklahoma, but his name and address are not known. There were no eyewitnesses to the accident, and, as the patient has never regained consciousness, nothing is known of the cause. Mr. Woodward, who was on duty at the hospital, said that McMillan fell a very short distance, but he has been severely injured. It is believed that his head struck a rock. Dr. Fisher accompanied the man to Richmond, and assisted in the operation. Mr. Woodward was at the hospital until late last night. He declares McMillan to be a man of sober habits and an industrious worker.
